

New MIG Welding course delivered to Mullan Lighting and Manufacturing Employees

Welcome to the latest edition of CMETB Skills to Advance Newsletter. We are delighted to shine the spotlight on a new and exciting course added to CMETB's suite of STA courses - Metal Inert Gas (MIG) Welding. This training was delivered by the experienced team at RIBH training for Mullan Lighting and Manufacturing Ltd workplace located in the Old Shoe Factory in Mullan Village, Co. Monaghan. The MIG welding course empowered Mullan employees with the skills required to create unique lighting fixtures and added to their exceptional craftsmanship skills. This EN Certified training involves flat / horizontal welding of steel plates using MIG/MAG welding processes.

The MIG welding course provided hands on practical experience in welding techniques including welding lap joints, tee joints and corner joints which are directly applicable to the intricacies of lighting design and production. RIBH provided customised training and allowed for endless creativity to facilitate the Mullan team to create bespoke lighting fixtures. The course included safety protocols, setting up and operating welding equipment, welding fundamentals, technique mastery and project based learning.

In addition to the MIG welding course, Mullan employees have engaged with CMETB on various other upskilling opportunities including; ILM - Developing your Leadership Styles, ILM - Delegating Authority in the Workplace, EXPLORE Initiative and a number of evening provision courses. CMETB look forward to continued success on future training opportunities with Mullan Lighting and Manufacturing Ltd.
